

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

According to one embodiment of the invention, a method includes receiving a search term for a query. The method also includes searching a network of concept terms for terms related to the search term. Additionally, the query is reformulated using the search term and the related terms. A local database is searched for data terms that match the search term and the related terms. The data terms are from documents residing on websites located on servers across a network. Moreover, the method includes retrieving the documents from the websites whose data terms match the search term and the related terms.